

GREATEST DRY CRUSADE IS PLANNED

Expect Ratification By Congress

ADMINISTRATION NOT WORRIED BY DISCORD OVER BELGIAN TERMS

Show Concern Over Action of Belgian Parliament Now

Washington, Aug. 22.—While a jarring note of dissatisfaction over the Belgian debt terms has been sounded by Senator William E. Borah and there are rumblings of discord in other quarters, administration officials remained confident today that when the matter comes to a showdown early in the new congress ratification of the agreement will be accomplished overwhelmingly.

Officials here are more worried over the attitude of the Belgian parliament than they are over the American congress. Whipped up by a press that has consistently and vociferously advocated cancellation of war debts public opinion in Belgium may yet upset the work that was accomplished in Washington this week by tedious negotiation.

There will be a lot of criticism of the Belgian settlement prior to its ratification by congress. That much is assured from the outspoken criticism of Senator Borah and the powerful little group for which he is the chief spokesman. However, the generous terms accorded Belgium do not, in fact, constitute a precedent for the settlements with France and Italy to be made next month. It is probable that the opposition will fade away of its own oratorical outbursts.

If on the other hand, France and Italy obtain similar concessions from the American debt funding commission, it is not only possible but probable there will be such an outburst of opposition as to endanger the whole work of the debt commission.

Cancellation of the interest payments on Belgium's war debt cost the American government approximately $80,000,000 at the outset. This is not a paper loss as the government has paid 4 1/4 per cent interest to liberty bond holders for the money that was loaned to Belgium and upon which Belgium paid no interest whatever. Over a span of 62 years, the life of the agreement the sum reached staggering proportions.

"If the Belgian settlement is to serve as a precedent it cannot be defended," said Senator Borah, in a telegram to Senator Smoot, Republican of Utah, the senate's representative on the debt commission.

"We are entitled to collect these debts on reasonable terms. I am not in favor of cancellation either openly or covertly. We can be liberal as to time of payment but congress has no right to cancel billions of obligations due the taxpayers of this country."

France and Italy together owe the U. S. approximately $6,500,000,000. Even should this debt be funded on the terms accorded Great Britain, with interest at 3 1/4 per cent it will cost the American government approximately $65,000,000 a year as the government is paying liberty bond holders 4 1/2 per cent on the same money.

Over 62 years or ninety years, as France has suggested, the net loss to the government runs to fantastic figures.

CHILDREN GUARDED TO FOIL KIDNAPERS

Mexico City, Aug. 22.—Villages in the vicinity of Mexico City were being patrolled by armed guards today. Newspapers published warnings to parents to keep their children at home as the only means of foiling the kidnapers who have carried off scores of girls throughout the country.

Although feeling is running high over the disappearance of young girls averaging two daily, the government and newspapers have warned against lynching the kidnapers, if any are caught.

Lynchings, it was pointed out, would prevent the recovery of the missing girls.

PRESIDENT RETURNS TO BUSY PROGRAM

Swampscott, Mass., Aug. 22.—A number of administration problems, coupled with eastern states politics confronted President Coolidge today on the first day back at the summer white house here.

Engagements which have been postponed, when the executive prolonged his visit in Vermont, promised to keep him busy throughout the morning and afternoon.

Postmaster General Harry New was the first to see Mr. Coolidge. He had come up from Washington to discuss departmental affairs, particularly the question of postal rates, which are now

NOT GUILTY SAYS LEE FROM DEATH CELL

By Jack Cejnar

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 22.—Like wild beasts in their cages, two condemned men paced back and forth along the narrow, screened off aisle in the death house. In the four occupied death cells, that opened into the aisle, sat four other men waiting their turn for the afternoon promenade.

One of the prisoners in the aisle was Number 54,596. Until recently the outside world knew him as Frank Lee, 35, colored. With each step he took, his date with death was one moment nearer. He seemed to be conscious of nothing but the fleetness of the precious moments.

"I ain't the guilty man!" he suddenly burst out in despair. "They got the wrong man when they got me. I don't know who did it."

He was referring to the slaying of Charles Simms at Xenia, July 10, for which he is to die at midnight, December 2nd.

"That's what a lot of them say," observed a guard who sat complacently, on a chair tilted against the window outside the screening.

"May God's lightning strike me down," the prisoner cried out. "If I am guilty, I am innocent. I never even was in Xenia before. I can face God himself and tell him to his face I didn't do it."

The prisoner pressed his face against the rusty screen. His eyes were glued on a tiny bright square in the corridor window opposite him. Through it came a ray of sunlight. It almost—but not quite—reached the prisoner.

Then he resumed his restless pacing back and forth.

"Don't you like it here?" asked the other prisoner in the promenade. "You ain't got nothin' to do but sit around and grow fat."

"I don't like it," Lee answered. "I am a working man. It bores me to be loafing around."

A snicker greeted Lee's words. It came from one of the locked cells where a man sat on the end of his bunk peering through the bars. His face was drawn into a terrible sneer as he looked at the negro. Perhaps he envied the negro. His "date" was next month—the 8th or the 18th—he didn't remember the exact date. The negro had until next December.

Lee grew silent again.

Only the footsteps of the two pacing men, now and then a cough from one of the death cells, or a yawn from the guard out in the corridor, broke upon the stillness of that wing of the prison. Occasionally a sound from the outside world penetrated in through the barred window—a toot of a distant automobile horn, a factory whistle, or the chirp of a sparrow.

At last there was a scrape of a chair. The guard sat up.

"Time's up," he announced. Lee and his companion retired to their cells. The guard walked down the aisle, locked their cells. He unlocked two other cells, two other men shot out and hungrily began to pace up and down.

Back in his cell Lee sat on the end of his bunk. For the thousandth time it seemed to the guard, he was reading a brief telegram from his wife:

"Monroe, Michigan: What must I do?"

Henrietta Lee.

EDITOR HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

CARL MAGEE SHOTS HOTEL EMPLOYE WHEN FIRING AT EX-JUDGE

Killing Is Sequel To Feud With Former Jurist

East Las Vegas, N. M., Aug. 22.

—Carl C. Magee, prominent newspaperman of New Mexico who several months ago gained nationwide notoriety in the famous New Mexico criminal libel case, is lodged in jail this morning after shooting and killing John B. Lassiter, an employee of a local hotel last night.

The cause of the shooting, according to eye witnesses, was the result of a fist fight between Magee and former District Judge David J. Leahy, in whose court Magee was sentenced to six months imprisonment.

According to witnesses Judge Leahy walked into the hotel lobby where Magee was in conversation with friends and began pummeling him. After he had been knocked to the floor by Leahy in the arm, Magee was taken fired two shots. One of the bullets struck Lassiter and the other wounded Leahy in the arm. Magee was taken into custody by Sheriff Lorenzo Delgado of San Miguel county, and lodged in jail. No charge as yet has been placed against him. Magee is the new editor of the New Mexico Tribune at Albuquerque and former editor of the Albuquerque Morning Journal and in the 1924 Democratic primary convention was a candidate for the United States senate.

During the famous Teapot Dome investigation, Magee maintained considerable publicity through his testimony. In 1923 Magee was hailed before Judge Leahy after an alleged criminal attack against former Chief Justice J. W. Parker, of the supreme court, in an editorial. Six months imprisonment was imposed on Magee for this offense but he was pardoned by Governor James F. Hinkle, then chief executive of the state. In July 1924 Judge Leahy hailed the Albuquerque editor before his court because he criticized the court's action in connection with his criminal libel case and sentenced him to three months imprisonment for contempt of court. At the trial Magee in answer to a question declared "that this is no court."

Preliminary investigation by the district attorney's office is under way and a statement from District Attorney Truider declared that a charge of manslaughter would be filed against Magee.

being investigated by a joint congressional committee.

Following the postmaster general was assistant Secretary of State Butler J. Wright, who presented Edwin Barclay, minister of foreign affairs for Liberia.

Another engagement brought Senator Edge of New Jersey, accompanied by State Senator Whitney and former Governor Stokes. Whitney is a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor and administration forces in New Jersey are anxious that he receive presidential approbation as a means of strengthening his campaign.

GIANTS AND PIRATES LAUNCH IMPORTANT SERIES AT NEW YORK

Double Header Is Opening Event Of Position Race

New York, Aug. 22.—With a world series atmosphere pervading the New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates will meet in a double header this afternoon at the Polo grounds by way of an inaugural to a five game series that will determine the temporary and perhaps permanent leadership of the national league race. Not less than 150,000 persons were expected to view the series which will be concluded with another double header tomorrow and a single game on Monday.

The weather today bid fair to be ideal.

The Polo grounds gates will be thrown open at 11:45 o'clock this morning and several hundred fans were waiting in line an hour before the scheduled opening of the portals. Hyde and Aldridge were understood to be Bill McKeen's advance selections for pitching today's games. McGraw was expected to counter with Greenfield and Scott.

The Pirates held a tactical pre-series advantage of a three game lead as the series opened. This made it necessary for the Giants to win four straight games in order to regain the lead and to take the fifth game in order to hold it.

CHICAGO PAYS LAST TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF VICTOR LAWSON

Elaborate Plans Made For Funeral Service Monday

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Chicago today prepared to pay final tribute to Victor Lawson, owner and publisher of the Chicago Daily News.

With a special meeting of the city council called for the forenoon to prepare suitable resolutions and to appoint a committee to attend the funeral services Monday other organizations likewise were arranging similar committees and delegations to attend the services.

Despite the announcement that the rites will be simple, it is expected they will be attended by practically all of Chicago's foremost men and by committees from all of the city's influential organizations. The union, league of Chicago, of which Lawson was a member for 44 years, also has appointed a committee to attend the funeral services.

Special radio services in honor of Lawson will be broadcast from the Sears-Roebuck station WLS Tuesday night. Every radio station in the city will be asked to cooperate by remaining silent for fifteen minutes. Thus thousands who, on Monday will be unable to crowd into the little gray stone New England congregational church, will be enabled to show their respect for the late journalist by listening in on what will be the city's final tribute.

It was one of Lawson's last expressed wishes that the funeral services be as simple as possible. For this reason no services will be held in the home. Burial likewise will be strictly private.

At the church, seats will be reserved for personal friends.

CAN YOU BEAT IT?

Lowell, Ohio, August 22.—Here's a real fish yarn.

William Gozzens set out a trot line in the Muskingum River.

In the morning when he went to look over his line, he saw it tugging fiercely. He thought he had a young whale on it.

He did. It was a huge cat fish that tipped the scales at 70 1/2 pounds. This big fish, of the mudcat variety is one of the largest taken from the Muskingum River in many years.

HE WAS DISCHARGED BUT WOULDN'T LEAVE

Cleveland, O., Aug. 22.—When the steward at the University Club here discharged John Kotensky, 24, dishwasher, John wouldn't quit. John liked his work and even Patrolman Patrick Showers had quite a session with him before John became convinced that he'd better give the position up. When Judge Bell gave him ten days in Warrensville workhouse for disorderly conduct, he said: "John you'll be more anxious to leave there, I think."

FIVE PASSENGERS HURT WHEN CARS OF PENNSY TRAIN LEAVE TRACKS

Urbana, O., Aug. 22.—Five passengers sustained minor injuries when four Pullman cars and a day coach of westbound passenger train No. 109 on the Pennsylvania railroad went into the ditch near St. Paris, O., shortly after midnight, this morning.

Hank Gowdy, member of the New York Giants, baseball team, was a passenger but was only slightly bruised and continued on his trip to the west coast on a scouting expedition for the Giants.

The accident was caused by a broken rail and within two hours traffic had been resumed. The engine, one day coach and three Pullmans remained on the track.

The injured:

Frank Amrine, Marion, Ind., head bruised.

Mrs. T. J. Devell, South Chicago, bruised face and head.

R. L. Recard, Chicago, sprained ankle.

Mrs. A. Louis Motley, Danville, Va., bruised head and leg.

Marie F. Won, Columbus, cut head and bruised shoulder.

After leaving the rails, the cars ran along the ties a distance of 500 feet into a deep cut and fell against the bank. None of them upset.

A relief train from Columbus took the victims and the remaining passengers to Chicago.

KLAN WILL DEFEND REVEALED RELIGION AGAINST AGNOSTICISM SAYS DRAGON

Pagan Civilization Target of Organization Says Osborne —Wants Acceptance of Truths as Taught In Faith of Fathers.

Columbus, O., Aug. 22.—The Ku Klux Klan is to be Christianity's first line of defense against enlightened paganism.

The white robed klanmen will seek to stem the tide of black skepticism and agnosticism that is sweeping America.

This, in effect was the statement today of Clyde W. Osborne, grand dragon of the realm of Ohio.

"The klan is preparing to launch a nationwide movement to save the country from the threat of a pagan civilization," Osborne announced.

"Unless we succeed in stemming this tide of pagan thought," Osborne said, "our children's children will be forced of skepticism and doubt." Osborne commends the Roman Catholic Church. For unless the tide is checked in twenty-five years the Romanists alone will be found defending the ramparts of revealed religion."

Osborne defined as the gravest issue of all times the present conflict between revealed religion—the faith of our fathers and what he termed the sinister forces which masquerade under the name of Christianity but which he said were leading the Protestant groups of America rapidly and irretrievably toward a state of enlightened paganism.

"William Jennings Bryan was stricken on the eve of a great campaign we had planned against the forces of skepticism and doubt," Osborne said. "His death focussed attention as nothing could have done on this great approaching fight, and closed the lines of battle into almost immediate conflict."

"We do not deny the possibility of organic evolution," Osborne continued, "it may have been God's plan of creation. This supposition is strongly supported by the remarkable agreement between the sequence of creation as related in Genesis and the geological story of rocks. We do not oppose the teaching of the evolution theory as such, provided the Bible story of creation is taught along with it. We do insist on the acceptance by all who call themselves Christians, of belief in the immaculate conception, the sacrificial death and the resurrection."

"An increasingly large number of the men who presume to speak for Christianity today make no such acceptance," Osborne stated. "These false leaders are betraying the submerged majority of the Protestant Church membership which does make such acceptance. Favored as they are by their strategic position in press, pulpit and university, they are striking a deadly blow at revealed religion, through our young people, who will constitute the overwhelming majority in Protestant ranks tomorrow."

"We want to restore the church to Christ," Osborne explained.

NEEDED CLOTHES

Cleveland, O., Aug. 22.—Ina Welljkenin, 23, had neither clothes nor money to visit her dying father in Royalton, Mass., she told Municipal Judge Bell today, so she took clothes valued at $400 and forged the name of her employer to a check for $60. She is held in city prison under a $1,000 bond.

"MOP UP DISTRICTS OR RESIGN" IS WORD TO DIVISION CHIEFS

Efficiency Is Keynote Of Drive Launched Under Andrews

Washington, Aug. 22.—Division prohibition chiefs began marshalling their forces today for greatest dry crusade in history under direct orders from the treasury department to "either mop up their districts or resign."

Whole-sale cleanings are in order from today until October 15 when everybody in the service under the new district administrator will be automatically dismissed.

Efficient veterans who will then be reappointed and able newcomers will form the nucleus of the dry army.

Although the district chiefs will not formally take office until September 1, many of them already heading state units, are passing around the word that a new order has arrived in prohibition enforcement, advising many veteran agents to look for new jobs.

Efficiency is to be the keynote of the greatest fight to make prohibition a reality, according to General E. C. Andrews and the new chiefs, armed with authority to pay their lieutenants more than was formerly allotted, were advised to build up an organization capable of matching brains with the bootleg industry.

A survey of the 24 appointments reveals that the majority are holdovers from the previous regime.

General Andrews made his biggest fight on the issue of politics in the enforcement of prohibition. He was forced finally to submit to influential senators who demanded that men of their choice be selected.

Treasury officials, however, were inclined today to regard Andrews as the master of the situation, he having carried the majority of his points over widespread protests from politicians.

Reorganization of the entire enforcement agency and centralizing of authority on twenty-four men, without regard to state boundaries was regarded today as the opening wedge in the campaign to definitely divorce prohibition from politics.

With the administration solidly behind him on the need for enforcing the dry law, Andrews, although finally accepting the recommendations of a large number of senators, and appointing their men, did so only on condition that they proved to be efficient.

Developments of the next few months were expected today to witness still further shakeups in dry circles with the near certainty that many of the present division chiefs would be told to resign should they fail to dry up their territories.

COUNTERFEIT BILLS NOT SEEN AT TRACK

Cleveland, O., Aug. 22.—U. S. secret service agents here today denied that any of the counterfeit $20 gold certificates had been passed at any of Cleveland's race tracks.

When secret service men began investigation of counterfeiting here, race followers tried to connect the activities with the cancellation of the racing meets at several of the race tracks here, announced yesterday by the managers.

The six arrests in Chicago in connection with a $500,000 counterfeiting plot are believed to be the main ring of the Cleveland counterfeiters. Most of the notes here were passed at small stores, secret service men said.

GIRL KILLED WHEN AUTO STRIKES POLE

Salisbury Beach, Mass., Aug. 22.—A wild early morning automobile ride by two sailors and two girls from Plymouth, New Hampshire, cost the life of Mrs. Sallie Davis, 25 and caused injuries to Miss Mary Berry, Emil Bryner and Mark DeHannon, the driver.

Speeding through this place and refusing to obey a police call to stop, the young joy riders were pursued by Patrolman Thomas Kelley, in a commandeered car.

A mile outside the town, DeHannon's automobile crashed into a telephone pole.

AUTOIST HURT

Marysville, O., Aug. 22.—Mrs. J. H. Ballard of Magnetic Springs, was in a serious condition today, the result of injuries received when the machine her daughter, Freda, was driving, turned over pinning her beneath the car. Four others in the machine were injured less seriously.

DON'T FORGET THAT INSURANCE ANY MORE EVERYONE NEEDS IT

Not long ago a garage was destroyed by fire in Xenia and several machines stored there were completely destroyed. Others were so badly damaged that they could not be repaired. And of the large number of owners of these machines, the majority did not have insurance on their cars. The value of each car was a complete loss.

This is just a true example of what happens every day in the United States, by people who simply neglect to take out the insurance they had planned from time to time.

It is hard to convince people that the agent is really doing them a favor when he is selling them insurance of any sort. But the insurance agent is doing that very thing.

Ray Cox, with offices in the Messenger Building, Second and Detroit Streets, will sell you fire, tornado, theft, auto, plate glass, liability in fact any kind of insurance you may need and you will certainly need some, some time.

Every individual does. Don't put it off any longer, but see Mr. Cox immediately in case of any misfortune.

DON'T PUT OFF UNTIL TOMORROW YOUR PLAN OF HOME BUILDING

"To build or not to build," that is the question, and our answers often take form in the words of Launcelot Gobbo when he tried to decide his momentous questions "Budge Launcelot; Budge not." Some say "Build," others say, "Build Not."

Still others simply procrastinate, putting off starting until they have everything just the way they want it. That time rarely ever comes. When people really have the desire to build but lack the courage of their convictions, they enact the old tragedy of Hamlet. Many times we go farther ahead in the end if we err in the other extreme and follow the old adage, "Nothing risked is nothing gained."

There is nothing risked, there are no errors if one employs a reliable contractor in the building of his home. And the worry about detail that is the main hindrance in home-building is quickly dispelled with the selection of such contractors as Jeffries and Fudge, who are general contractors.

By "general" we mean they take care of every detail of the construction of the residence and after learning the desires of the builder, act accordingly and build you a home without undue worry and trouble.

They will be glad to give you estimates at anytime on the construction of any building, whether large or small. Do not procrastinate any longer—don't dream of a home—have one.

OLD HOMES ONLY NEED MODERN PLUMBING TO TO BRING OUT DIGNITY

There are thousands of dignified old homes which need only modern plumbing and heating to make them as attractive as many fine houses of today.

What home lovers do not admire the dignity of old homes, with the quaint and handsome architecture of bygone periods? Always, the main objection to residences that have weathered the years, is that they are not modern. How easily this difficulty may be overcome and the refined comfort and spaciousness of fine old homes enjoyed!

New fixtures will transform a time-worn bathroom, introducing beauty and comfort without disturbing pipelines or walls. Space for an extra bathroom can easily be found in a large closet, an unused sewing room or a broad hall-end.

Why not utilize the waste space in your home by introducing comfortable and sanitary plumbing? A bathroom, nicely installed is one of the most necessary and attractive features of a home. In order that the best workmanship may be seen in the plumbing an expert plumber must be employed to handle the contract, of course.

Ask hundreds of Xenians of their opinion of the work of Harry L. Jordan, expert plumber. He has had large experience along the plumbing line and can furnish you with figures and specifications for the desired work and handle the contract in an up-to-date manner.

TAKE THE OLD BUS TO THE MINSHALL SHOP FOR NEEDED REPAIRS

Is there danger of your vacation being delayed because a certain part of your auto has broken down? For instance, if the fly wheel of the car has broken or another part has suddenly refused to function, take it to the Minshall Machine and Grinding Company, where all parts can be repaired. One of the most complete welding departments in the vicinity can be found at the Minshall shop. No matter how large or how small the broken piece may be, or of what metal it may be made of, Mr. Minshall or his workmen, with oxy-acetylene torches, and big pre-heating furnaces may fix the breaks.

To insure against finished castings, such as automobile engine blocks, becoming warped or twisted while being welded, Mr. Minshall has installed two big pre-heating furnaces, which heat the piece to be welded to an even heat all over.

In addition to the welding equipment, Mr. Minshall has one of the most complete machine shops, for repair work in this section. With six lathes, four drill presses, of different types, planer and universal milling machine this shop, is able to take care of most any kind of machine work.

Dodds in New York.

PHEASANTS, OTHER BIRDS AND FISH ARE BEING DISTRIBUTED

According to information received by the local chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America, Director

Charles V. Truax of the department of agriculture, and Chief D. O. Thompson of the state division of fish and game department have been working overtime for the past few weeks, distributing mature pheasants and preparing for the distribution of several carloads of fish this fall.

Several thousand pheasants have been liberated throughout the state and the work of "dressing up" the eight inland hatcheries is rapidly nearing completion.

A number of swans, mallard ducks, peafowls and six different species of pheasants have been purchased by the state for propagation purposes at the Roosevelt Game Preserve near Portsmouth. The building of four new hatcheries was started in July. New hatcheries will be located at Indian Lake, Piqua and one in Crawford County.

Game protectors are instructed to rigidly enforce the use of set lines. Legislation in this respect specifies fish can be taken only with line in hand or rod in hand. The "fish hog," therefore, who plants from fifteen to twenty poles, is to receive swift justice.

A trucking system is also being worked out by officials in charge of fish distribution in order to eliminate the loss of fish through delay in transportation. The trucks will work in conjunction with the state fish car "Buckeye" and will also make hauls from the different state hatcheries to points of distribution.

More than 100,000 rod and reel licenses have been sold in the state at this time. Revenue from the sale of these licenses is to be used in the interest of anglers of the state. New hatcheries are to be built with the funds thus made available, public fishing grounds are to be established and conditions improved for the increase of this sport in Ohio.

MODISH MITZI—Mitzi Adds Instead Of Subtracts Pounds

By JAY V. JAY

MODISH MITZI
Mitzi is serious about this reducing business. She has read about what the books have to say on diet, and what other books have to say on exercise and now she is going to try it on the horse. The smart, sleeveless coat to her linen habit and her snug close-fitting hat have a great deal to do with this form of exertion!

A lemon-lime, a lemonade, an orangeade, a lemon squash—oh, there are a number of very cooling drinks that one can take that have no effect upon one's figure. Polly is trying to enjoy a glass of plain seltzer though she had a pecan nut sundae with caramel sirup in mind before Mitzi heartlessly mentioned that it was fattening.

Dancing—well, everybody knows what good exercise that is—is the last thing Mitzi does every night. The Goofy is so glad that he can help her reduce in this pleasant and painless way. (Her satin dress with its V neck ends in one of those full draped skirts in the back.)

Polly has asked her to stand on one foot—then on the other. The verdict is the same. Mitzi has gained half a pound today! Maybe, suggests Mitzi, she should take off that garter with its marquisette initial. "No," says Polly, "No, an ounce of fashion is worth—well more than a pound of anything else."

THE REVELATIONS OF NATURE.

FOR more than an hour a school of dolphins will race ahead of a steamer forging through the water at a rate better than seventeen miles an hour. The fish-like mammals seem to have not the slightest difficulty in keeping ahead of the ship. Close to the surface they swim in plain sight and although they are going at what seems incredible speed for a creature that lives in the water, not a single motion of the tail is perceptible—although it is doubtless the propeller responsible for the sustained great speed.

"To propel a body weighing from four to six hundred pounds through the water at a rate of seventeen land miles an hour, a powerful engine is needed. And the dolphin has that engine in its great heart. Also it has recently been discovered that the hydrocarbons which make up a large portion of the body of petroleum is available as a heat creating agent to fishes and mammals like porpoises and dolphins. Human beings cannot be nourished on petroleum or any of its derivatives, the digestive processes of the human interior being altogether insufficient to alter such substances in the slightest.

"The hydrocarbons of petroleum are more productive of heat than are ordinary fats assimilable by men and perhaps the fact explains why it is that dolphins can race with vessels for hours at a time without betraying fatigue.

"Zane Grey, who angles for swordfish a goodly part of the time when he is not writing novels, says that the heart of the swordfish is one of the most extraordinary engines known. A swordfish will battle for his life and tow boats miles in his efforts to escape. Work that would tire a mammal quickly seems not to fatigue the great fish although it is kept up for hours.

"No engine that man has ever yet contrived is as economical of fuel and as prodigal of power as the heart. This statement applies to the human heart.

"All man-made engines are merely crude models of nature's power plants. The firebox of the locomotive corresponds to the human stomach, food to fuel in the firebox, the steam to the blood, the side and connecting rods to the muscles, the tires on the wheels to the feet, the exhaust to the act of respiration, the engineer to the brain and the throttle, with its control of movement, to the nervous system by means of which the will telegraphs to the muscles of the feet and legs when motion is desired.

"Nature's engine also runs by heat. While coal in a furnace burns by ordinary fire the coal (food) in the human furnace burns by oxidation or what the layman calls chemical combustion—although all combustion classes as such. The exhaled air of the lungs is equivalent to the exhaust from the stack of a locomotive. The human engine is self-repairing while that constructed by man must be repaired by him when it, too, fails—as it does much oftener than does the one made by nature.

Many things that nature has been doing for all the centuries that the world has been peopled by living things man is just now slowly learning to do. To the lowly caterpillar which has eaten green leaves and then through the chemical processes of its interior changed such material into silken threads, later spun into a shroud in which the worm undergoes a metamorphosis, belongs the title of The First Silk Maker and Spinner.

Chemists are not yet able to do the work of changing ordinary green leaves into silk with the same economy and skill that the caterpillar displays, but, everything considered, they have done well. The ordinary wood of yesterday is today the rayon hose and "silk" dress of the flapper on the opposite seat in the subway train because of the research work and experimental of chemists. Some day the vegetables at the corner grocery may come from a factory wherein chemists take such materials as are to be discovered in the air and the soil and transform them as nature does through the agency of plants.

The recent expedition of the good ship Arcturus and the work of the scientists abroad have called attention anew to the fact that deep sea fishes have some means of making light by a cold process. Some time the human brain will find the key to that secret. The study of nature is not only fascinating but when men seriously labor to find out how to do things as nature does them then they make discoveries that enable all of us to live on a higher scale.

Is anything in nature quite as remarkable as the human brain?

Several reader friends have written to ask for an article on making candles from the bayberries which grow near the seashore. Such candles may be put in Woman's Exchanges and Gift Shops for sale. Or they make excellent Christmas gifts. Because of their delicate green color and their fragrance when burned, they are always appreciated.

Hand-Dipped Bayberry Candles: Gather the berries any time in the fall (although some people maintain that they are best picked after the first frost), and when you have several quarts of them put them in a kettle with an equal amount of cold water. Let boil four hours, adding a little hot water now and then as the original amount boils away. At first the berries should boil quite rapidly, then be allowed merely to simmer for the remainder of the four hour period. Set the kettle away over night without removing the berries from it. Also do not touch the kettle in this over night period, as the wax from the berries sinks very easily to the bottom, and it should be allowed to harden in a cake on the top.

In the morning lift this cake of wax from the kettle and remelt it in the upper part of a double boiler. Some people use it just as it is for the candles, after straining it through cheesecloth. But I always add two ounces of paraffin wax to it and mix well together before proceeding, as follows, to make the candles. Candle wick comes in coils; break several strands of it, then the one end of the braid to a stick and dip the other end into the melted wax, again and again, till the coating on it is as thick as you wish the candle to be round.

Moulded Bayberry Candles: Make the molds by rolling rather stiff paper around an ordinary candle several times and gluing the edges down. This forms a neat tube. Glue a circular piece of paper on the bottom so as to rise the end of this tube. Melt an ordinary candle and pour its wax into the paper mold, merely to give it a coating (so that the more precious bayberry wax will not be wasted sinking into the paper.) Now run a braided wick through the disc at the bottom of the mold, and glue the lower three strands of this braid onto the outside of the paper-disc. Make a wood frame to hold these molds, by boring holes in a box-board.

Put the molds into this frame, and secure wicks upright in each mold by running a hairpin through each wick at the top across the mold. Pour in the melted hot wax; it will shrink from the sides of the molds as it cools and the holes thus left should be filled with more wax. When almost cold, tear off mold spirally and cut wick to within an inch of candle on top.

THE LAUGHTER OF A CHILD

The laughter of a little child!
What tinkling water fall or stream,
Or little silver bells agleam,
Or moonlight softly rustling down
On Lady Evening's silken gown
Or even angels meek and mild
Singing their gentle hymns of praise
Can charm us in so many ways.

In childish laughter there is more
Delight and rapture for mankind
Than all things else the world can find.
'Tis sunlight for the tragic blind,
And to the troubled peace of mind,
The waves which ripple into shore,
Have no such charm our lives to bless
As does a small child's happiness.

In childish laughter, one can hear
The strains of music sweeter far
Than harp or lute or guitar.
A chord beyond the power of man
To catch within the pipes of Pan,
A sound so musical and clear
That sometimes tears of joy will start
So softly does it touch the heart.

Oh, those who've watched by night
And prayed
Beside a baby's bed of pain,
Waiting to see her smile again;
Watching for signs that fever's tide
Had run its course and would subside,
Will tell you there's no music made,
By which the heart is reconciled
So sweet as laughter of a child.

Read Mrs. Benedict's Letter Praising Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Kewanee, Illinois. — "When I was married about a year and a half I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because of ill health. I did not have any children. I now have two healthy little girls and I am sure I would not have had them had it not been for your medicine. Last spring and summer I got all run-down, irregular, and I had awful headaches, and my back and side hurt me so that I could stay up only a short time. My limbs would get so tired and ache till I could cry. I started to take the Vegetable Compound again and used the Sanative Wash, and it was not long till I was relieved. Now I do all my own work and help others. I sure praise Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines to any one I meet that is suffering from similar troubles. I think if mothers with girls would give it to them when they come to womanhood it would make them stronger. People who have known me all my life are astonished to see me now as I was always sickly when in my teens and until I started taking the Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. MARY R. BENEDICT, 313 Payson Street, Kewanee, Illinois.

Today's Talks

UNDERCURRENTS

There is greater power to the undercurrents than those at the surface; although the surface currents often appear to suggest all the power of the river or stream.

The silent, understanding forces of the human make-up also run deep and make no fuss or fume. They embody the essence of feeling, of appreciation and pure love.

It is always unwise to judge another by appearances, or by overheard phrases, or even by acts, the interpretation of which you are not able to fathom truly.

The benefit should always be given to the doubt where a friend is concerned. One can well afford to go far and long where human feeling is concerned. There is nothing in our creation of man, in itself or in combination with nature or science, that is so sensitive as the human heart. It responds to hurts easier than the dedicated place of the photographer.

You can't see the undercurrents that bathe the heart.

There is an impression that the late W. H. Hudson was a recluse and that he kept aloof from people. In reading a very interesting book of his letters the editor tells that probably no less than 20,000 letters were received by Hudson during the last years of his life in England. Himself a wonderful letter writer, he loved to receive letters from those who were worth while. His undercurrent of love for his friends, as well as all nature was astounding it was so full and warm.

The charm of any personality lies mostly in what it only suggests. Often the silent man is the magnet around which people gather. There is a certain fascination to that or whom you know knows and who makes you feel that he knows.

I have looked into the face of my god many and many a time and have felt that he understood that I loved him and that the affection which he gave to me was fully returned.

Many lives move deep like the great river. So when it is possible to get such a life on your side, as a friend or companion try to merit and keep it as your very own — loving, forgiving and understanding.

BALD EAGLES ARE FOUND NEAR KENT

Columbus, Ohio, August 22—Reports have reached Chief D. O. Thompson of the state fish and game bureau that another pair of American bald-headed eagles has been discovered in Ohio.

The newcomers are said to have taken up their abode in the vicinity of Rockwell Lake, near Kent, Ohio. Chief Thompson said that the eagles now making their home near Vermilion, Ohio, had caused the department considerable trouble as farmers charged the big birds had been destroying livestock.

"We got twelve petitions asking that the eagles be exterminated," Thompson said. "However, an investigation disclosed that something else was the cause of the heavy livestock loss."

William Hill, a resident of Rockwell Lake, claimed to have got with a stone's throw of the eagles recently. He stated they had a wing spread of about six feet.

Search for the eyrie of the Rockwell Lake eagles will be instituted during the fall by Dr. Francis H. Herrick, professor of biology at Western Reserve College, Cleveland.

Chief Thompson said it was illegal to shoot the eagle unless they were actually caught in the act of destroying livestock.

"NOT POSSIBLE TO CLASSIFY" BY MACK SAUER

Schools will soon be opening and kids will be speaking pieces. Permission is given the pupils of Spring Valley school to use the poem printed below.

OH, WHAT A PAL WAS MARY

Away with your girls with their sloppy galoshes,
Your bobbed haired young beauties with cheeks tinted red,
With your powdered young cuties I think I'd be cautious,
They might suit you youngsters, but I'll take instead
My old-fashioned Mary, my freckle-faced Mary, my soup-eating Mary,
Who washes my head.

O, some may be fair, just a bit above twenty,
And willing to enter some thrilling romance,
Perhaps a young widow with money a-plenty
Is pretty as blazes and like blazes can dance,
Yet I'll stay with Mary, my read-headed Mary, my two-tisted Mary,
Who patches my pants.

Perhaps they have lips that are sweet and alluring
And arms that are ruffled in soft velveteens;
They may spend their days in snoring and noring
And ride half the nights in sporty machines;
But I'll ride with Mary, my own cross-eyed Mary, my dear wifey, Mary,
Who cooks all my beans.

'Tis true the young pretties sometimes find me glancing,
For sometimes I fall when I see a cute maid;
But when I go out for an evening at dancing
I know that through all the dances I'll wade
With old-fashioned Mary, my freckle-faced Mary, my own wifey, Mary,
For of her I'm afraid.

RECITATION BY SPRING VALLEY HIGH SCHOOL GIRL

They keep the cows on the pasture,

The milk will be pasteurized.

MAKING BANDITS

ROB AKRON TAVERN

Akron, O., Aug. 22—Two masked bandits, carrying large revolvers early this morning held up the Peacock tavern on the state road a few rods north of Akron's city limits. They searched John Smith and John Winney, employees of the place and took $100, then drove away in the direction of Cleveland in an auto which had been left standing in the road with the motor running.

Earlier in the night, an employee of the Stevens Hotel on North Main Street, was held up by two men while he was working at the desk. The robbers searched the rooms, but found little cash, and contented themselves with taking fountain pens and revolvers. They then compelled Boatwright, the employee, to accompany them in an automobile for about a mile when they threw him into the road. He was not seriously hurt.

DENIES OFFICERS

UNDER SUSPICION

Cleveland, Aug. 22—Thomas E. Stone, divisional prohibition chief of Ohio-Michigan-Indiana, returning to Cleveland today from Washington denied that federal prohibition men were under suspicion in the Cuyahoga county liquor mixups and the recent justice of the peace scandal.

It had been rumored that two federal men would probably be involved in the "crooked booze ring." While in Washington Stone conferred with Prohibition Chief Andrews. He also visited Philadelphia and his activities there were believed to be connected with the superior industrial alcohol company's illegitimate activities. The concern was raided a week ago and more than a quarter of a million gallons of alleged alcohol seized. The upper ring was believed to be situated in Philadelphia.

GENERAL STORE AND

RESIDENCE BURNED

Gallipolis, O., Aug. 22—Fire of undetermined origin at Chester, a Meigs County village, burned the general store of W. A. Folan, the residence of Abraham Eisenstein, his barn and garage and another house early today.

The Pomeroy fire department prevented the fire from destroying the entire village which was almost completely wiped out by fire two years ago.

BELLBROOK

Frank Shawen will close his store on Saturday night. His stock of goods will be sold at auction sale beginning Monday August 24.

James R. Hale, assistant state librarian is spending his vacation in his native village.

The home team won a walk-away victory last Sunday afternoon when they completely overthrew the Wilmington Night Hawks by a score of 8 to 1. The locals will play the Yellow Cabs of Dayton on the home diamond next Sunday August 23.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Blum and nephew John Buyer of "Trails End" near Dayton were Saturday night callers on their friends here.

Funeral services for John W. Smith were held at his late residence Wednesday afternoon and burial made in Bellbrook cemetery.

By the decision title to several acres of peony, iris, phlox, gladioli and dahila bulbs valued at about $50,000 is given to The Wing Seed Company and its successors the Wing Flower and Seed Company now known as The Wisteria Farms nursery, east of Mechanicsburg.

Eva Guy Wing and Charles P. Guy claimed ownership of the bulbs because of the fact that they were growing on farms by them from the receivers of The Wing Seed Company and Charles and Willis O. Wing, near Mechanicsburg. They claimed the bulbs as a part of the land and secured injunctions in the Urbana Common Pleas Court which was later dissolved.

Logan, Ohio, August 22—Mystery surrounds the finding of an abandoned automobile in a corn field near here. Officials said indications were that the car had been used by burglars. The license tags and all other marks of identification were missing from the machine, officers said.

BROADCAST BY STATION

WONES

Mickey Cochran, young catcher for the Athletics, is the most sensational player of the year. He came direct from Portland of the Pacific Coast League last spring and supplanted Ralph "Si" Perkins who has been regarded as one of the aces of the game. Mickey is one of the best hitting catchers in the game and has a good arm. He ranks about third in hitting with a .357 average to date. Now that Ray Schalk is fading out, Cochran has come to take his place.

The Reds may fail to win a pennant this year, but their three star pitching staff will carry them very close to the leaders. Their artillery is as heavy as that of the Pirates or Giants but their pitchers are the best of the league. Donohue, Rixey and Luque are hurlers that any manager would love to have. Their chief trouble is their hitting as it fails to match up to the pitching. Roush, Bressler and Walker are about the only ones hitting well over the .300 mark. Rixey has won more
